The Chesterfield County Residential Report

Summary Findings

The following is a summary of totals for residential development in Chesterfield County as of January 1, 2004 and as of January 1, 2005. A change in the number of tentatively approved lots may result from new activity, expiration of approval or lots being recorded. A change in the number of houses resulted not only from new houses being built, but from additional research and reclassification of some subdivisions for 2004 and 2005. The change in total apartment units included the loss of 18 units from Falling Creek Apartments due to flooding from hurricane Gaston.

New for This Year

- Change in Recorded Lot Number In past reports, some subdivisions had a very high recorded lot number, which was derived from original plats. These plats contained many very small lots, some as small as 25 feet wide. This produced misleading information, implying that there were more lots available. This occurred because property owners would buy more than one lot on which to construct a house. For example, although Crescent Park had 505 recorded lots, according to data from the Real Estate Assessors Office, the number of actual lots in the subdivision is 147. For this year's report, fifty subdivisions have had the number of recorded lots reduced.
- New Map A map has been added this year which shows the areas of the county which are vacant and zoned for residential use. This map can be used to predict where future growth may occur.

Introduction

U. S. Census data shows that in 2000 there were 83,376 single family houses in Chesterfield, making up 85 percent of all county residences. Eighty-one percent of county residents owned their homes in 2000, compared to 68 percent statewide.

Since the 1990 census, the number of housing units has increased by 27,700, to a January 1, 2004 total of 107,600. This represents a 39 percent increase or about 2.8 percent per year, which was less than half the rate of growth of the 1980s. Single-family building permits since 1990 have dipped to an average of 1,900 per year, much fewer than the average for the late 1980s (over 3,000). Only Fairfax, Loudoun and Prince William counties issued more residential building permits than Chesterfield from 1990 through 2004.

Since 1994, about 13,600 single-family lots have been recorded in Chesterfield, and over 18,700 lots have been tentatively approved for development. Even with an average of 1,923 new single-family homes built each year, the county still has an inventory of almost 9,700 lots available for development. This does not include property zoned but as yet unsubmitted for development. In twenty zoned, but undeveloped, large projects, over 15,000 housing units could be built.

Most single-family homes in Chesterfield County are in recorded subdivisions. However, just over 9,100 are constructed on acreage parcels not in subdivisions. There are 1,210 existing single-family subdivisions with an average size of 75 lots, but most have fewer than 50 lots.

Size of Subdivisions

An analysis of subdivisions by the number of houses, shows that more than half (60 percent) of them have 50 or fewer homes. Only ten have more than 500, and only two have over 1,000. Large, planned developments such as Brandermill, Woodlake and The Highlands consists of many subdivisions, most smaller than 100 homes.

Tentative and Recorded Plats 1994-2004

Tentative and recorded plat data for the years 1994 through 2004 shows generally larger numbers of tentatively approved residential lots than recorded lots. Tentative approval is good for five years, but can be renewed. The 5,207 new tentatively approved lots in 2002 were the most approved since 1989.

This information can be used to indicate how many potentially buildable lots have been added to the county's inventory over the years.

Residential Building Permit Trends, 1994-2004

The table and chart show the total number of residential building permits issued in Chesterfield County between 1994 and 2004. Single-family permits were significantly lower from 1995-1998, however, 2004 had the most permits since 1989. Multi-family permits have been much higher since 1998, more than 200 above the ten year average of 581. Note: multi-family permits for 1996-1998 have been changed from previously published reports due to new data.

Year	Single Family Permits	Multi-Family Permits	Total

Regional Single-Family Permit Trends

Information for single-family residential building permits compiled for the Richmond-Petersburg Metropolitan area shows permit volume for Chesterfield County compared to Richmond and Henrico County and the remainder of the Metropolitan Area. Between 1994 and 2004, over 21,000 single-family residential permits were issued in Chesterfield. The Metro Area expanded in 2004, adding seven counties. The numbers for previous years has been adjusted

Dwelling Units Added 1994-2004

The table and chart show the number of dwelling units, both single- and multi-family, added to the Chesterfield County inventory between 1994 and 2004. The totals, as of January 1, 2005, have reached over 93,500 for single-family and 17,359 for multi-family. As can be seen, the greatest variation is in the number of multi-family units built each year. Single-family units built in 1996 and 1997 reached a 15-year low. In 1998, 94 new multi-family units were built, however because of redevelopment at Winchester Greens, there was actually a decrease for that year. Eighteen units were lost in 2004 due to hurricane Gaston.

Housing Values 1995 - 2004

The table and graphs below show both the number and cost of housing (both resale and new) sold in the last ten years. As can be seen the number of units sold has increased but the ratio of new to resales has changed little. The second graph shows the increase in the purchase price from 1995 to 2004. Although inflation grew by 27%, the price of new housing grew by 81% and resale housing by 68%. Last year saw a particularly large increase in the cost of new housing, increasing by 17%.

High-Growth Subdivisions 2004

The table to the right shows the ten subdivisions that added the most new homes in 2004. These ten account for 29 percent of over 2,259 new homes built in the last year. The map below shows that although the majority of these subdivisions are in the fast-growing western Hull Street Road area, others can be found in the northern and eastern parts of the county.

Residentially Zoned Vacant Land

The map below, shows the areas of the county which are vacant and zoned for residential use. These almost 9,000 parcels have a development potential of more than 42,000 housing units. Some properties have been zoned within the last year, others have been zoned for over 20 years.

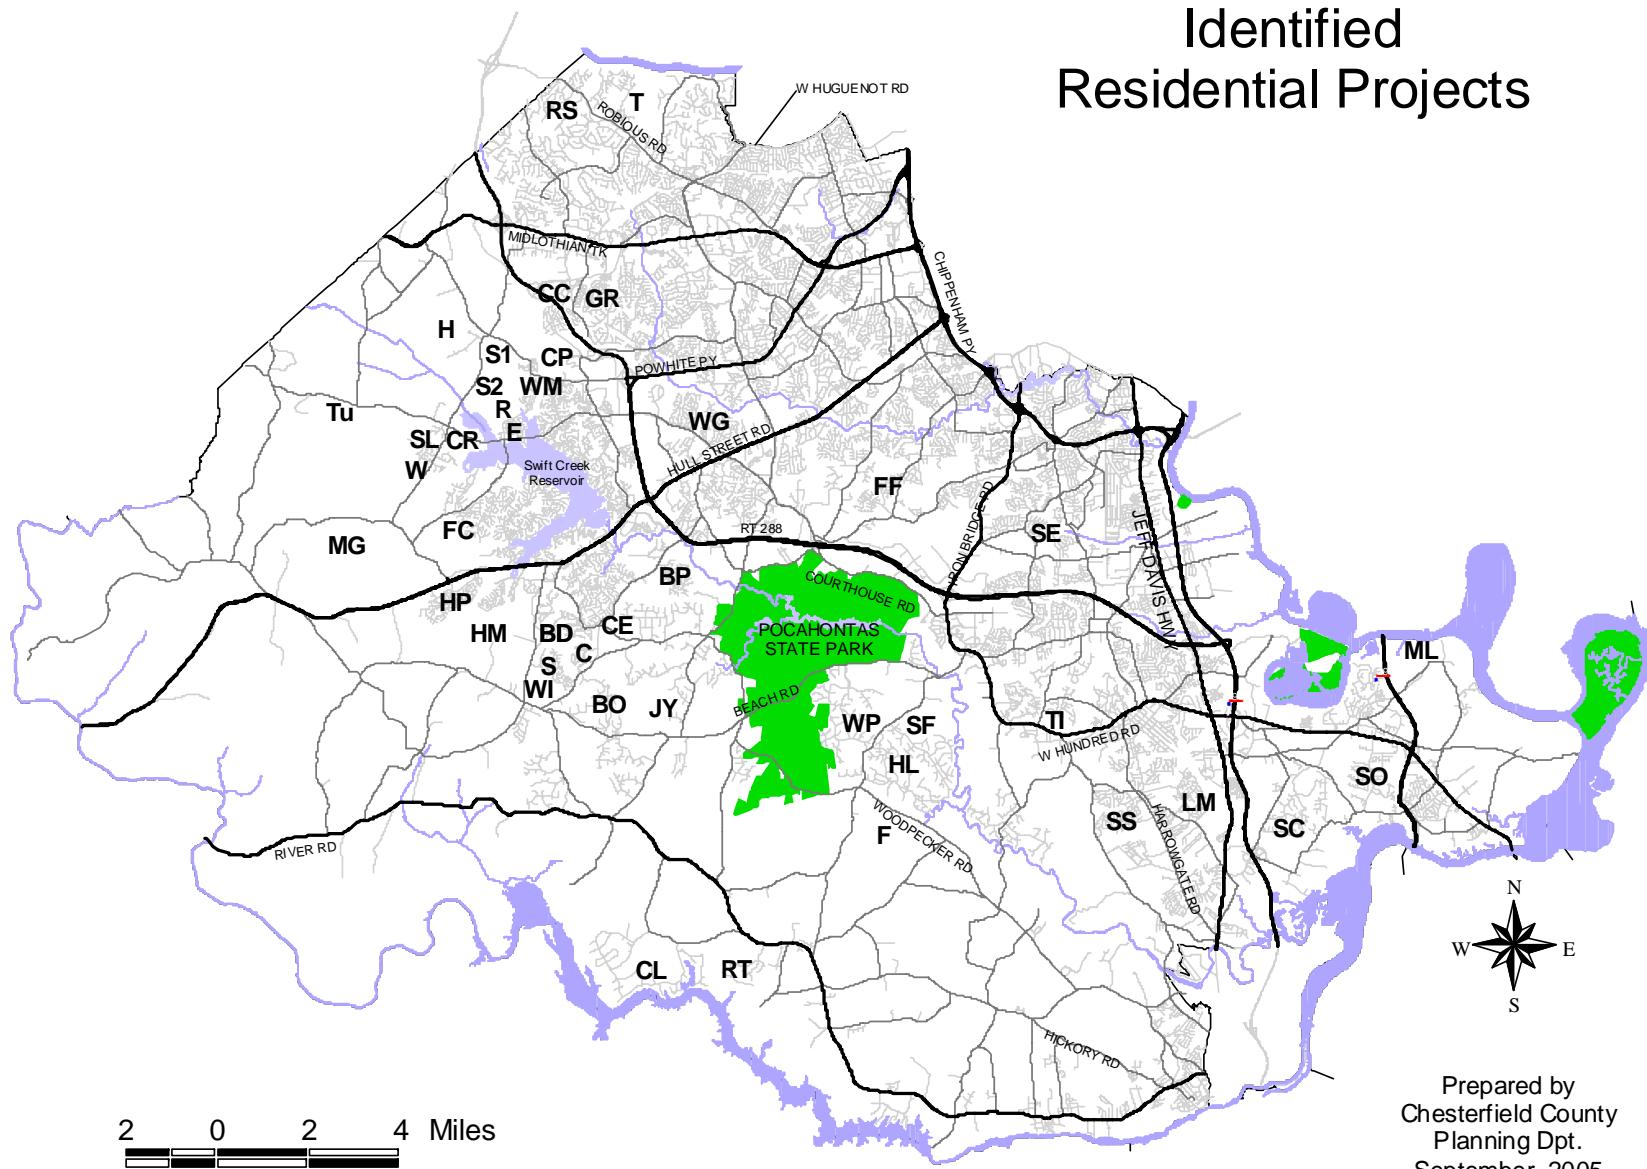

Development Potential of Selected Residential Projects

The table below can be used with the map on the following page to locate selected residential projects and determine growth potential. Some projects, such as The Highlands and Longmeadow, consist of many subdivisions. Depending on the zoning, the number of approved homes may not be an exact number. This data is as of January 1, 2005. Not all subdivisions in the county with available lots are shown.

About The Residential Listings

This section contains information about residential development in Chesterfield County. It lists all recorded and tentatively approved subdivisions, including the total number of units built in each. The section also documents the current status of existing or approved condominium developments, multiple family developments, mobile-home parks and duplexes. For more information about definitions, see the Glossary on page 27.

The information in this section was obtained using both the Planning Department's Computerized Information Management System (PIMS) and the Tax Assessor's Computer Assisted Land Information Appraisal System (CALIAS). These on-line systems are available for public review in room 203 of the Planning Department. These information systems can be accessed by Planning Department staff to produce a variety of more sophisticated and complex data than is found in this report.

Using The Listings

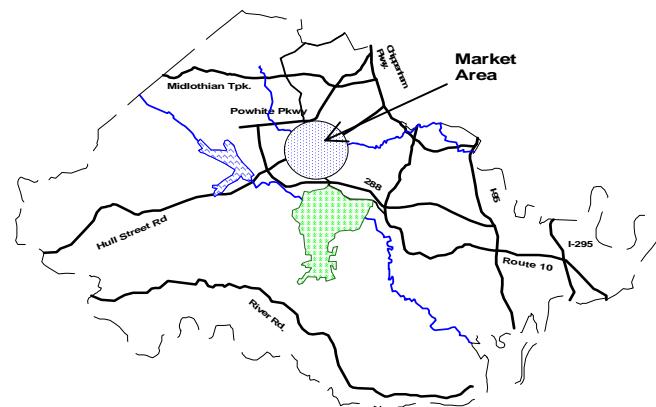

Using the Detailed Tables section of this report (see pages 1-27), it is possible to analyze a selected geographic area as shown in the example provided below, or to create specific tables by housing type, as shown on the following pages.

Sample Geographic Analysis

QUESTION: How much residential development has been approved for the area within a 2-mile radius of the intersection of Hull Street Road and Courthouse Road

STEP 1: Identify traffic zones comprising a market area by referring to the Countywide Traffic Zone Map. (see Appendix B)

STEP 2: Using the list from step 1 and the Detailed Tables, generate a list of projects located within these zones. For these subdivisions, look in the Dwelling Units Built column, and use other columns listed to derive potential lots. (Potential Lots = Recorded Lots - Units Built + Tentative Lots)

Traffic Zones - 1427 - 1432 and 1438 - 1441

Glossary of Terms and Abbreviations

APPD UNITS (Approved Units): The number of condominiums or multiple-family units permitted by an approved site plan or past development standards regulating the specific development.

CENSUS TRACT NUMBER: Chesterfield County is currently divided into 59 census tracts.

Demographic information derived from the census (taken every 10 years) for these irregularly shaped areas is used by Federal, State, regional and local planning agencies to develop plans.

CONDOMINIUMS: Multiple-family projects, consisting of attached or detached housing units, where individuals hold common ownership of the project.

DUPLEX: A single building containing two separate dwelling units. Most duplexes are found in subdivisions, however, over 100 of them are on non-subdivision lots.

LOTS TENTATIVELY APPROVED: Before a subdivision can be recorded with the Clerk of the Courts, it must receive tentative approval by Chesterfield County Planning. This review is intended to assure that all subdivisions conform to the requirements of the Subdivision Ordinance. Tentative approval expires after five years, but may be renewed.

LOTS RECORDED: After receiving tentative approval and following a check of the final plat, the subdivider may record the lots contained in the subdivision. Following recordation, the subdivider may proceed with development.

MAG. DIST (Magisterial District): The county has five magisterial districts: Bermuda, Clover Hill, Dale, Matoaca and Midlothian. Each district is represented by one member of the governing body, the Chesterfield County Board of Supervisors.

MULTIPLE-FAMILY: Includes typical apartment buildings that may have exterior main entrances or main entrances from a common interior hall.

MOBILE-HOME PARKS: Parcel where two or more mobile or manufactured homes are located and no lots are for sale.

NUMBER: A unique number assigned to each residential development.

SINGLE-FAMILY: Subdivisions that contain typical, one-family detached homes or mobile or manufactured homes.

TOTAL UNITS BUILT: The number of townhouse, condominium, single-family and multiple-family units in place, based on records maintained by the departments of Real Estate Assessment, and Planning.

TRAFFIC ZONE (Traffic Zone Number): Chesterfield County is currently divided into 182 traffic zones. Land use and population data from these irregularly shaped areas is used by State, regional and local planning agencies to develop transportation, water and other plans.

TOWNHOUSE FOR SALE: A group of attached one-family dwelling units that are located on individual lots.

UNITS BUILT IN THE LAST YEAR: The number of townhouse, condominium, single-family or multiple-family units added to a development in the previous 12 months.

UNITS PERM. (Units Permitted): Some condominium and multi-family developments have a number of units that although permitted, have no current development approval.

ZONING: Refers to the regulations attached to a section of land relative to the type of use and location and size of improvements as detailed in the Chesterfield County Zoning Ordinance.

APPENDIX A

Geographic Analysis

Researchers wishing to analyze specific areas may use the detailed tables to collect a variety of information about that area. Any of the standard geographic areas, i.e., magisterial district, census tract, or traffic zone, listed in the tables, may be used for area reporting. Maps of these areas are available from the Planning Department.

Analysis can also be done relative to an intersection by choosing the Traffic Zones or Census Tracts that roughly comprise the selected market radius.

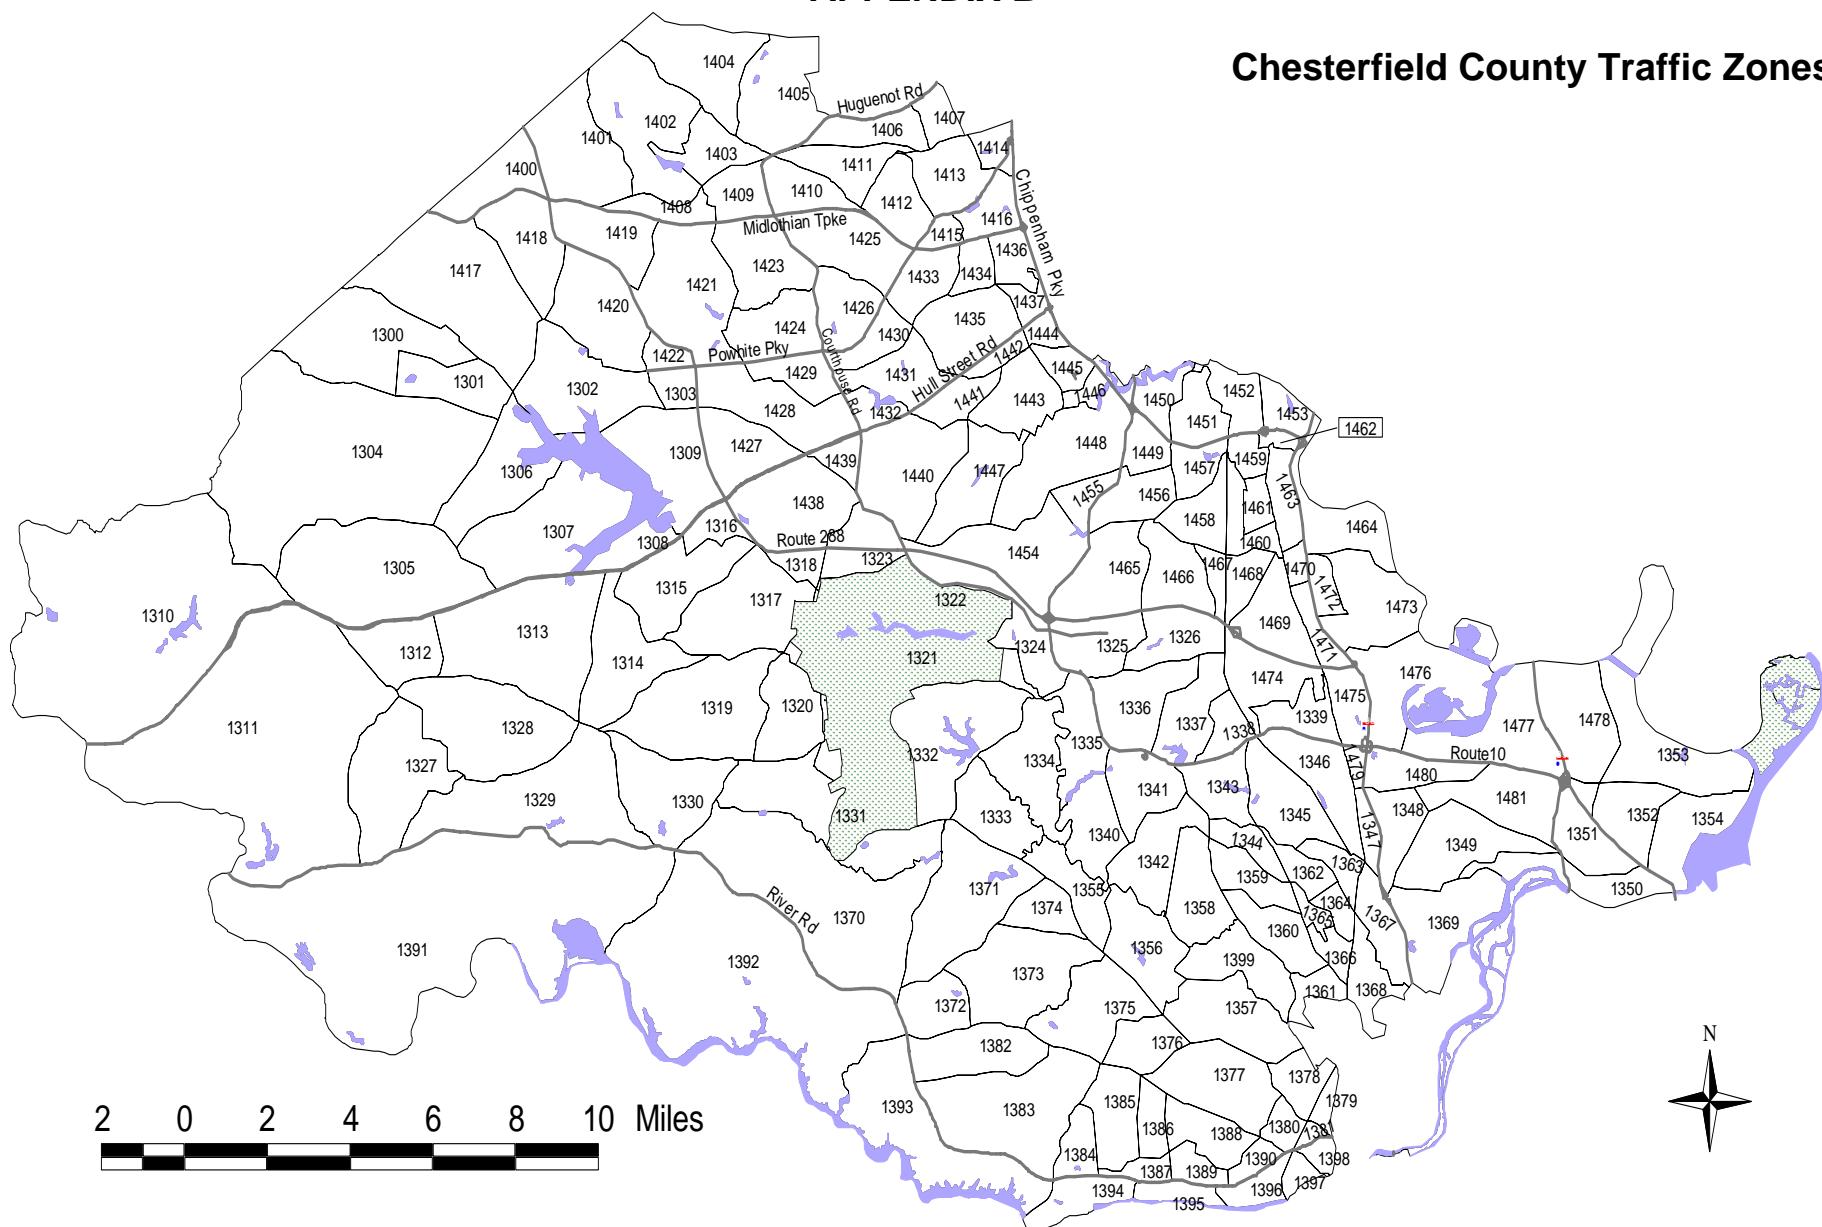

For example, if the area within a 2-mile radius of the intersection of Hull Street Road and Court-house Road is chosen for study, the following traffic zones might be used: 1427-1432 and 1438-1441. The table on the following pages uses data from previous years. It shows a way in which data about this area could be organized.
